South Carolina State University (Academics) Night

September 15, 2010, 6:00PM – 7:30PM

Marriott Hotel - Downtown, 1200 Hampton Street - Columbia, SC 29201

South Carolina State University (Academics) Night will present SC State University Vice President of Academic Affairs, Dr. Joyce Ann Blackwell, as keynote speaker. Vice President Blackwell will address the audience with open dialogue in a Town Hall format.

This program is designed to provide details on the academic programs and scholarships that are available at SC State University, applying for admission to SC State University, SC State's many programs of excellence that enrich students' academic preparation within and beyond the classroom and curriculum, and how the University provides opportunities for its students to intern and gain full-time employment with its partners.

This program will highlight exemplary teaching, learning, research, scholarship, service, and career opportunities in Science, Mathematics, and Engineering; Education, Humanities and Social Sciences; Business & Applied Professional Sciences; Graduate Studies/Extended Studies; and the newly unveiled Honors College.

- More than 50 degree and certificate programs
- Undergraduate and graduate studies
- Faculty and students research and publications
- Office of Student Retention and Success, which helps new and returning students become successful in their academic careers
- Weekend College; Continuing Education Program Offering Online Courses; etc.

This program will highlight the important role of students upon graduation and how local alumni Chapters are advocates for current students, SC State University and their communities.

Greater Columbia Chapter SC State University Night invites high school students and their parents, technical college students, prospective graduate students, and others who show interest in an academic career at South Carolina State University. School administrators, guidance counselors, alumni and supporters within the community who identify and nurture these promising students are also encouraged to attend.

SCSU Admissions Director, Mr. Antonio Boyle, and staff will be prepared to offer onsite acceptance letters and scholarships to students who meet the criteria. Additionally, prospective students will be invited to apply for academic and need-based scholarships awarded by the Greater Columbia Chapter.

SC State alumni are invited to share in this Bulldog Experience with students and to greet Vice President Blackwell.
